1. The first part of the document is a list of names and addresses, which appears to be a directory or a list of contacts. The names are written in a cursive script, and the addresses are listed below them. The list includes names such as "John A. Smith", "Mary E. Jones", and "Robert L. Brown".

them, extend only to particular Cases, and therefore leave us without that general Relief, to which to be wished for, by all who have Occasion to use the Art of Numbers.

THOSE who practise Numbers, must allow, that the Operation of Multiplication requires closer Attention, and exercises the Memory more than any other Rule in Arithmetic.

When we are first instructed to multiply Numbers, we are obliged to learn by Heart, as indispensably necessary, the Pythagorean, or Multiplication Table, and, without being able instantly to apply it, little or no Progress can be made in the Art of Numbers; indeed, if the Business ended here, the Burden would be very tolerable, but this carries us no farther into the Work than finding the Product of Two Figures; when the Places are increased in the Factor (or Number to be multiplied) the Rule requires not only the immediate Use of the Pythagorean Table, but to be able to treasure up in our Memory, the Carriage riage-Figure of the former Product, and add it as speedily to the Product next found, and so proceed, if necessary; which Two-fold Operation is not only tedious and burdensome, but subjects the Process to Error. In order to lessen, or avoid, as much as possible, these great Inconveniencies, various Methods have been devised, but most of them serving only for particular Factors, or requiring certain Relations or Properties among them, extend only to particular Cases, * and therefore leave us without that general Relief, so much to be wished for, by all who have Occasion to use the Art of Numbers.

The Great Lord NEPER, Inventor of the wonderful Art of Logarithms, † having maturely considered the Nature of Multiplication, contrived certain Tables, Rods, or Bones, as they are called, for subduing these Difficulties, which indeed must be allowed to be adequate to the Task, and to be the most compendious and curious Method that could possibly be invented for this Operation, but then, this Epitomy carries with it also some few Inconveniencies: First, The disposing of the Rods as the Factor shall require: Secondly,

* Those who are desirous to see the various Contractions of Multiplication may find them in Malcolm's Arithmetic, wherein the Science of Numbers is treated in the most scientific Manner, and it is to be doubted, whether this Book has its Equal on the Subject, in this or any other Language.

† The Operation and Result of Logarithms, in certain Calculations, is so easy, certain, and speedy, compared with the Process necessary for the same in natural Numbers, that it seems at first more the Effect of Magic than of Reason.

Secondly, The Product of any Factor, consisting of Two or more Places of Figures, multiplied into a single Digit, requires still a further, but indeed simple, Operation, which is a small and easy Addition: And lastly, The Table for the Factor must be destroyed before we can use the Rods again.

We come now to mention another Method made use of for the Multiplication and Division of Numbers, which, though not so compendious as the Rods, yet, upon the whole, exceeds all others whatever, in respect to Ease, Certainty, and Dispatch; the Method consists in this, in assuming any Factor at Pleasure, and finding (which may be done by Addition) the Products of such Factor by the Nine Digits, and we are then furnished with a small Tariff or Table, for multiplying or dividing any Number whatever by it.

This Method of tabulating Factors has always been preferred and practised by the skilful in Numbers, in constant Cases of Calculation, but the Tables for these Purposes have been wanting, till of late (Anno 1747) the ingenious Mr. DODSON published, in his Calculator, Tables of Products*
of * These Tables are intended as auxiliary to his Logarithmic Tables, contained in the same Book, and for other Purposes, and are a valuable Set of Tables, for Persons concerned in Calculations, but the Tables of Products have not (perhaps) the most convenient Form.

There have likewise been published, this Year, by Mr. RILEY, Arithmetical Tables, containing the Products, of all Numbers from 1 to 5280, and are a Set of very useful and correct Tables; the Errors of the Press are very few; the Form of them we have also thought convenient, and is that which we have adopted.

of all Numbers, from Unity to One Thousand, and has given Examples (which we have used) for finding the Product or Quotient of any Two Numbers that may be required.

We shall proceed now to say something concerning these our Tables, which contain, in continual Succession, the Products of all Numbers, from Unity to Ten Thousand, by the Nine Digits, and are carried to nearly twice the Extent of any Tables of the Kind hitherto published; and as the Value of all Tables depends upon their Correctness, we are led to hope, from the great Pains that have been taken to perfect them in this Respect, that they are free from even a single Error; but if any should be found (since all Men are fallible) the Editor will be greatly obliged to such Persons as may discover them, if they will inform the Publisher thereof.

The Head of each Page expresses the First and Last Factor contained in it, and all the intermediate Factors are found therein. The small Side Columns, in which are placed the ordinal Numbers, from One to Nine, are called the Index-Columns, (corresponding to the Index-Rod made use of in NEPER'S Bones) and contain the Figures of the Multiplier or Quotient, according to the Operation required to be performed.

We must observe, that it is supposed, that those who use these Tables are already qualified to perform the Operations of Multiplication and Division.

sion without them, when necessary, since to turn to them, upon trifling Occasions, is neither the Intention or Use, but rather the Abuse of these Tables.

Before we give Examples of the Manner of using these Tables, we shall explain such Signs as are generally employed, to prevent that tedious Tautology, which would otherwise unavoidably attend their Explanation.

EXPLANATION OF SIGNS.

|   |                         |
|---|-------------------------|
| + | Is the Sign of Addition |
| — | Subtraction             |
| × | Multiplication          |
| ÷ | Division                |
| = | Equality                |

EXAMPLES.

1.  $8 + 4 = 12$  signifies 8 more 4, or 8 added to 4, or the Sum of 8 and 4 is equal to 12.
2.  $8 - 4 = 4$  signifies 8 less 4, or 8 lessened by 4, or the Difference of 8 and 4 is equal to 4.
3.  $8 \times 4 = 32$  signifies 8 multiplied by, or into 4, or 4 Times 8, or the Product of 8 and 4 is equal to 32.
4.  $8 \div 4 = 2$  signifies 8 divided by 4 is equal to 2.

The MANNER of using the TABLES.
Let it be required to find the Products of 8761,

EXAMPLES 1, 2, 3.

|                          |                          |                          |

|--------------------------|--------------------------|--------------------------|

In these Examples, as it is in all Cases of single Multipliers, the Products are found by Inspection.

Example 1. Look for the Multiplicand 8761, in the Table (Page 293) then running the Eye down the Index-Column for the Multiplier 6, you will find on the same Line 52566, which is 8761 multiplied by 6, and is the Product required.

Likewise (Ex. 2, 3.) the Products of 8761, multiplied by 7 and 8, are found to be 61327, and 70088, respectively.

EXAMPLE 4.

What is the Product of 8761, by 876?

Seeking in the Table, after the Manner above described, for the Products of the several Figures of the Multiplier, they will be found as there set down, it being composed of them, it remains then only to put these Numbers (in this Case called single, and by some partial Products) into those very same Places, we should have done if we had performed the actual Operation, and adding them up, we shall find the Product required to be 7674636.

Before we proceed, we must premise, that notwithstanding it is generally taught, and most usual in actual Operation, to make the largest Number the Multiplicand, yet it is not of Necessity; the Manner of placing Factors and Products being altogether arbitrary, for the Product obtained by multiplying Numbers together, in any Order, is equal to that obtained by multiplying them together in any other Order; the whole Art of placing Numbers, whether Integral or Fractional, in all Operations, consisting in rightly assigning the Place of Unity, whence the Value of all Numbers is determined, that being the Standard of the Notation. Our next Examples in Multiplication and Division, are taken from Mr. DODSON's Calculator, which for Elegance and Perspicuity, in illustrating the Manner of using a Table of Products, cannot be exceeded.

PROB. IV.

To find the Quotient of any two Numbers.

Put  $A$  = the Three Left Hand Figures of the Divisor.

$B$  = the remaining Figures thereof.

$D$  = the Dividend.

$n$  = 10, 100, 1000, &c. when  $B$  consists of 1, 2, 3, &c. Figures.

Let  $\frac{D}{n} = d$ , and  $\frac{B}{n} = b$ ; also  $\frac{d}{A} = Q$ , and  $\frac{b}{A} = q$ .

Then will the required Quotient be  $Q - 2Q + 2Q^2 - 2Q^3$  &c.

EXAMPLE.

E X A M P L E

Divide 659579115888 by 875963.
 Here 875 = A; 963 = B; 659579115888 = D and 1000 = E.
 Therefore 0,963 = b; and 659579115,888 = d.
 Now 875) 659579116 (= 753805 = Q (found by problem 3.)
 And 875) 0,963 (= 0,0011 = q.
 Th. 753805  $\times$  0,0011 = 829, &c. = Qa\*.
 And 753805 = 829 = 752976 = the Quotient required."

The Design of this General Problem † is to accommodate a Table of Products to such Divisors as may exceed the Limits of the Table, which without this could not be effected; those who may think the Problem difficult, have only these Remedies, Actual Operation, a Logarithmic Process, or making, for the Divisor, a Table of Products; which last we recommend, as it furnishes the Quotient-Figure and its Product by the Divisor, by meer Inspection, which casts out the chief Inconveniencies of the actual Operation.

Division seems to be the most subtil Affection of Quantity: It is the Cause of Fractions, engenders

* It is hoped, that those who are unacquainted with the Language of Symbols in Calculations, will excuse the Introduction of them into this Work, as the Problem could not have been delivered so well in any other Way. The several Values of the Symbols employed in the above Example are therein expounded, and will, to the ingenious and inquisitive prove a sufficient Explanation of the Problem.

† The Solution of this Problem, is an Application of the celebrated Binomial Theorem to Division. This admirable Theorem, first communicated to the World, by the incomparable Sir ISAAC NEWTON, is put upon his Monument in Westminster-Abbey: Such great and extensive Uses were diffused through the Principal Branches of Calculation by this Discovery, that for its Importance and Universality it may perhaps be deemed the greatest Addition the Mathematicks ever received.

genders the mysterious Doctrine of Ratios, is the Parent of Surds, and creates one of the principal Difficulties in the Inverse Method of Fluxions.

The Construction of these Tables, depending upon Addition only, requires no formal Explanation, and as to their Application, it is too obvious to need Description. The Editor therefore only begs Leave to observe, that he doubts not but the Public will find in them (what he himself has experienced through many Years extensive Practice) as great Relief, in Common Arithmetic, as the Logarithmic Tables afford in the more intricate Calculations; and will not only convey at the same Time, Ease, Certainty and Dispatch; but may even contribute to preserve the Health and Faculties of those, whose Employments in Life, require a considerable Use of Numbers.
